Unit III. Interesting Lives

INTRODUCTION TO THE UNIT

In Unit 3, you will learn how to talk about interesting life experiences and memorable moments. You will practice asking and talking about experiences you have had in your life and learn how to describe them clearly. This unit also helps you check and clarify meaning during conversations, so communication becomes easier and more effective. In addition, you will learn how to describe details of your experiences and talk about memorable events. These skills will help you to communicate with more confidence and share personal stories in everyday and academic situations.

UNIT OBJECTIVE

To develop students' communicative, linguistic, and social skills in English so they can interact at a basic level when talking about life experiences. By the end of this unit, students will be able to ask and talk about past and memorable experiences, clarify meaning in conversations, and describe details of personal events in a clear and organized way.
